Two restaurants are shut down after rat infestations discovered

TWO Tottenham restaurants have reopened after being closed down due to rat infestations.

Station Chicken Express, in White Hart Lane, and The Dragon Inn Chinese takeaway, in The Roundway, were shut following visits by environmental health inspectors from Haringey Council.

Both are now back in business after being reinspected and showing significant improvements.

Officers who visited Station Chicken Express on January 29 found evidence of rats and mice.

They also discovered a lack of hot water, poor general hygiene standards, piles of rubbish and structural defects which were a health risk and allowed rats to get in.

On February 7 they discovered a rat infestation in the storage area of

The Dragon Inn, as well as mice in the food areas, droppings around the premises, structural defects, neglected waste and general dirtiness.

In both cases, Hygiene Emergency Prohibition Orders were issued – allowing the restaurants to be closed immediately before the decision was rubber-stamped by magistrates on February 13.

Councillor Nilgun Canver, cabinet member for the environment, said: “It’s really disgraceful that some restaurants believe they can risk the health of their customers by not adhering to even the most basic hygiene standards.”

Both restaurants will receive repeat visits from council officers, who will take formal action to ensure that they continue to comply with food safety law.

Lib Dems fight planned police station closures

HARINGEY Liberal Democrats have spoken out against plans to close police front counters and reduce opening hours.

The opposition politicians have written to the Deputy Mayor of London for Policing, Stephen Greenhalgh, objecting to proposals to close Muswell Hill police station and to cut the hours at Hornsey and Tottenham.

Lynne Featherstone, Lib Dem MP for Hornsey and Wood Green, said: “Since the announcement, we have been calling for assurances that no service is lost without a suitable replacement.

“We oppose any reduction in hours at Hornsey police station and will be fighting to keep a police base and front counter staffed by the dedicated team of volunteers in Muswell Hill.”

FATAL STABBING AT HOUSE PARTY

Cordoned off: Police tape at the entrance to Stamford Road, leading to Stamford Close

POLICE have opened a murder investigation after a party-goer was stabbed to death in Tottenham at the weekend.

The incident happened at a house party in Stamford Close, just off Broad Lane, early on Sunday morning. Police and paramedics were called shortly before 5am following reports of a fight. Five men were found suffering from various injuries.

The victim, 20-year-old Ibrahim Ali, was one of three men taken to hospital suffering from knife wounds. Police said he died soon afterwards.

The other two men, a 20-year-old and a 21-year-old, were treated for what police described as “minor” injuries at separate hospitals and later discharged.

They were then arrested in connection with the incident and taken to separate north London police stations. One was still in custody as the Advertiser went to press. The other has been released on police bail.

A third man, aged 21, was arrested at the scene for drunk and disorderly behaviour and taken to a north London police station. He was later released.

On Monday, police arrested a man in his 20s at an address in Tottenham on suspicion of murder and he remains in custody.

The two other injured men, aged 25 and 33, made their way to separate hospitals where they were treated before being discharged.

Mr Ali, from Tottenham, was a former pupil of Park View Academy, in West Green Road, and tributes have been paid to him by friends and former classmates on social networking site Facebook.

Mr Ali's next of kin have been informed.

Detectives from Haringey CID and the Homicide and Serious Crime Command are investigating and police said they were keeping “an open mind as regards to a motive”.

Anyone with information should call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Man in critical condition following collision

POLICE are appealing for witnesses after an early-morning collision left a pedestrian in a critical condition.

The man, who is in his 50s, was involved in the collision with a green BMW 320 in High Road, Tottenham, on Monday last week.

The incident, which happened at 3.40am, took place close to the junctions with West Green and Broad Lane.

The man was taken to an east London hospital suffering from multiple injuries. He was in a critical condition as the Advertiser went to press.

Police officers want to speak to a number of people who were waiting at a bus stop near Broad Lane and several of whom went to the man's aid, as well as a black cab driver who pulled over after the collision.

The driver of the BMW stopped at the scene. There have been no arrests.

Officers from the North West Traffic Garage are investigating. Witnesses should call Detective Constable Charlie Pulling on 020 8842 1817.

The youngster, believed to be aged under two, was left in a buggy on the bus in Edmonton on Friday March 1. The child was said to be “safe and well” after a hospital check-up and has been rehomed.

Walkies may be costly

HARINGEY Council is reintroducing dog control orders across the borough from April 1 following feedback from residents.

Anyone caught walking a dog off the lead in a public street could be fined £80.

Dogs will also be banned from children's playgrounds and marked sports pitches when they are in use, but they will still be allowed off the lead in most of the borough's parks.

Exemptions will be made for disabled people with trained assistance dogs.

Cannabis plants found

POLICE seized 37 cannabis plants after raiding a home in Tottenham Hale last week.

Officers from Haringey safer neighbourhood team found the plants during an early-morning raid on Wednesday.

Ventilation ducts and high sensitivity lights were also discovered in a bedroom at the empty property.

No arrests have been made.

Olisa is new top cop

VICTOR Olisa has taken over as Haringey's new police borough commander.

Chief Superintendent Olisa replaced Sandra Loohy last week. She is leaving to become Operational Command Unit Commander at Westminster Palace and he has moved from Bexley after a year in charge of the south London borough.

A SEX trafficker who tried to force two teenage girls into prostitution was jailed for 14 years this week.

Odosa Usiobaifo, 35, of Keats Close, Ponders End, brought the Nigerian girls, aged 14 and 15, to Europe in 2011.

The girls were carrying fake passports and were stopped by officials at Heathrow airport as they travelled from Lagos to Paris – and they were placed with foster families.

After they disappeared from their homes in Sussex in April last year, it was discovered that Usiobaifo had given them new travel documents and put them on a flight to Spain.

Sex trafficker who sent teenage girls to Spain jailed for 14 years

One of the girls was refused entry to Spain and was returned to the UK, where she remains in the hands of the authorities. The other girl was allowed into Spain and has not been heard of since.

Police tracked Usiobaifo down and he was arrested in Enfield in September. A jury at Isleworth Crown Court found him guilty of conspiring to traffick for the purpose of sexual exploitation.

Usiobaifo pleaded guilty to conspiring to facilitate illegal immigration at an earlier point in the trial and was sentenced on Monday.

Senior investigating officer Jonathan Bush, from the UK Border Agency's Criminal and Financial Investigation team, said: "The ordeal these girls went through was horrific and tragically one of them remains missing. We are determined to do all we can to stop the abhorrent crime of trafficking."

Two-year dip as police stop and searches drop by 10,000

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

THERE has been a dramatic reduction in police stop and searches in Enfield – but community activists say the powers continue to be used wrongly.

Data obtained under the Freedom of Information Act reveals that the total number of stop and searches in the borough dropped from 19,875 in 2010 to 17,319 in 2011.

In 2012, the figure was down to 9,801 – a 44 per cent drop on 2011.

Officers have a range of powers at their disposal to stop and search individuals, including suspicion of a drugs offence, carrying a weapon, impending violence and terrorism.

Most searches were carried out under the Misuse of Drugs Act.

Using this power, a total of 5,035 searches led to 333 arrests during 2012 – just 6.6 per cent of the total figure. Black people are almost twice as likely to be stopped and searched than others.

In 2012, the total number of searches carried out on white people in the borough was 6,177 – representing 3.2 per cent of Enfield's white population.

The number of black people searched was 3,075 – representing 5.7 per cent of the borough's black population.

Ken Hinds, who is a youth worker and community consultant with police in Edmonton and Haringey, said: "My concern is that there are still way too many searches carried out on suspicion of minor drug offences, that often don't result in an arrest and create great resentment within the community."

"After the riots [in 2011] the police realised there was a lot of resentment in the community because of stop and search tactics and they have since focused more on searching people for weapons."

"Minorities continue to be unfairly targeted and this has to stop. Intelligent policing can only come with the consent of the community."

A spokeswoman for Enfield Police said: "At the start 2012 the Metropolitan Police announced new stop and search objectives, with a renewed focus on reducing violence, including increasing the proportion of weapon searches and reducing the number of unsuccessful drug searches."

"We accept there are disparities in the use of stop and search. This is clearly of concern to us and it is vital that we not only maintain but also enhance local accountability to provide greater transparency."

Park's lake kicks up another stink

Fuming: Theresa Lefley, of the Friends of Pymmes Park

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A LAKE in Edmonton that has been plagued with pollution and sewage has been fouled up once again.

A vigilant resident detected an awful smell coming from the lake in Pymmes Park on Thursday. And when sewage experts were called, thick brown gunge was found to be clogging up the filter beds.

Chairwoman of the Friends of Pymmes Park group Theresa Lefley, 64, spotted the pollution while walking through the park, in Silver Street. "I smelt a disgusting smell that I associate in that area with raw sewage flowing into the lake," she said.

She immediately called the Environment Agency and the following day a team from Thames Water discovered that the lake's filter beds had been clogged.

This is the second time in five months that the lake has become polluted – after sewage flooded the water in November.

According to the water company, the problem is down to a sewage drain which has been connected to a rain water drain.

A Thames Water spokesman said that engineers would be examining CCTV footage to pinpoint exactly where the thick brown sludge had got into the waterway.

He added: "We are currently preventing further pollution to the lake by using tanker lorries to remove excess flows of sewage. This is a short-term fix before the long-term solution."

Mrs Lefley is furious that the problem of sewage seeping into the lake has been left unchecked for so long.

"We have been dealing with a sewage problem in this lake for 16 years and nobody has done anything to sort it out," she said.

"We would like to see more monitoring of the lake. We feel that we are doing the agencies' jobs for them.

"We know there are so many cutbacks at the minute, but it would be so nice if wildlife and fish could be safe and thrive on that lake."

Nina and her student team storm to TV quiz victory

FORMER Palmers Green schoolgirl Nina Grant led her team to a decisive win on Monday night to put them within touching distance of a place in the semi-finals of the BBC TV quiz University Challenge.

Her Bangor University team romped to victory over their opponents from Imperial College London – defeating their rivals by 90 points with the final score reading 210-120 in favour of the Welsh team.

The win by the Bangor students means that the quartet, comprising Nina, who went to school at Palmers Green High, in Hoppers Road, Simon Tomlinson, Mark Stevens and Adam Pearce, now have to win their quarter-final contest to make it through to the last four of the notoriously difficult quiz, hosted by Jeremy Paxman.

But if they don't win, they will be out of the competition.

Banger and Imperial were neck and neck halfway through this week's match before a string of correctly answered starter questions quickly put Nina and her team out of reach of their opponents.

The resounding victory followed defeat for Nina's team at the hands of University College London in their first quarter-final match, broadcast last month, which Bangor lost by 190 points to 125.

Council building stays occupied as lawyers miss eviction hearing

By Daniel O'Brien

daniel.obrien@nlhnews.co.uk

LAWYERS acting for Enfield Council who failed to turn up to a squatter eviction hearing say they did not know the case was starting because the court Tannoy system had broken.

A judge at Barnet County Court had been due to decide whether to grant an interim possession order for the former office block in Bowes Road, Arnos Grove, which has been occupied by campaigners who had previously been staying in the former Friern Barnet Library.

The squatters moved out towards the end of January after Barnet Council agreed to hand the library building, in Friern Barnet Road, which was closed down in April last year, back to the community.

They immediately moved into the Enfield Council office block, which housed social services staff and was also used as a place for children in care to have monitored contact with their parents.

Last week the council, which is in the process of selling the building, initiated possession order proceedings against the squatters.

But on Monday morning, when the council's representatives failed to attend the hearing, the judge rejected the application.

A council spokesman said its barrister and officers had been in a consulting room at the court building – but the Tannoy system was broken and court staff had failed to alert them that the case was due to start.

Squatter spokesman Pete Phoenix told the Advertiser: "I have seen squatters be late and miss their cases, but never the barrister."

He added that legal action was unnecessary as

Looking for an agreement with Enfield Council: The squatters occupying the building in Arnos Grove the group wanted to reach an agreement with the council that would see it look after the building until new owners take possession.

"We always say to owners when we squat buildings that we are willing to leave on an agreed date," he said. "Let's not go through the wasted costs of court."

The council spokesman said the authority was disappointed with the judge's decision and that possession proceedings would continue.

"The building is being sold and contracts have been exchanged," he said "Money raised from the sale will fund vital council services at a time when Enfield is experiencing significant spending cuts from central government."

"The continued illegal occupation is jeopardising this sale and any resulting funds earmarked for investment in our communities."

Swan on the mend after dog attack

Making a slow recovery: The young swan who was injured in an attack by a dog on Sunday

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A BABY swan is making a slow recovery at a wildlife sanctuary after suffering a vicious attack from a dog which had been left off the leash.

The swan had gone on to the banks of Boxer's Lake, in Lonsdale Drive, Oakwood, on Sunday when a dog, which eyewitnesses said was a Staffordshire bull terrier, launched a frenzied attack on the signet.

One resident of nearby Lindal Crescent, who didn't want to be identified, told the Advertiser that two teenagers were allowing the dog to roam off the lead when it started to stalk the young swan.

The animal then pounced on the bird, tearing into its wing.

"What is it going to be next, a child?" said the furious resident.

"I have seen these people with this particular dog before and it is never on a lead."

Another concerned resident telephoned Kevin Garten, an Enfield-based volunteer for a swan sanctuary, who rushed to the scene to find the injured bird nursing its wing in the water of the lake.

"When I arrived, I saw the attacked swan wasn't using one leg and it was keeping well away from everyone," he said. Mr Garten managed to lure the wounded swan on to a boat and then whisked it away to the Swan Sanctuary, in Shepperton, south-west London.

Melanie Nelson, from the sanctuary, said: "The rescued swan has a nasty bite on its wing and it sustained some nerve damage to its leg."

"It might be quite some time before the swan makes a full recovery."

According to Melanie, head of veterinary nursing at the sanctuary, this is an increasingly common problem.

Swans, used to being fed by people on the shores of lakes and rivers, stray further and further from the water and leave themselves open to attack from dogs which are not under control.

"Dog owners should always keep dogs on a leash when they are near wildlife and bird lovers should feed them on the water," she added.

"It is better and safer for the swans as they can get away from predators much more easily in the water than on dry land."

Fan charged with throwing banana

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A FOOTBALL fan will appear in court charged with throwing a banana on to the pitch at the north London derby earlier this month.

Thomas Flint, 23, from Brantwood Gardens, Oakwood, will appear at Highbury Corner Magistrates' Court on April 12 charged with throwing a missile at the match.

He is accused of throwing a banana on to the pitch at White Hart Lane as Tottenham's Gareth Bale took a corner at the match between Spurs and their north London rivals Arsenal on March 3.

The carpenter has also been charged with the public order offence of using threatening, abusive or insulting behaviour or words likely to cause harassment, alarm or distress.

Goalscorer: Gareth Bale

A spokesman for Arsenal Football Club confirmed that Mr Flint would be banned for life from matches if he is found guilty.

Spurs won the match 2-1, with Bale putting the home side 1-0 up.

Train line shut as drills breach tunnel wall

THERE was rail chaos on Friday after trains between Finsbury Park and Moorgate were cancelled after workmen drilled through a tunnel wall.

A driver saw muddy water pouring on to the roof of his train just outside Old Street station shortly after 10am and all services on the First Capital Connect line were stopped immediately.

The line runs through Bowes Park, Palmers Green, Winchmore Hill, Grange Park, Enfield Chase, Gordon Hill and Crews Hill and through New Southgate and Oakleigh Park.

All trains into London were diverted at Finsbury Park into King's Cross.

An hour later an engineer was approaching the scene to investigate when two large piling drills burst through the walls of the tunnel.

Repair work continued over the weekend but on Monday morning passengers were left stranded when water that had poured through the wall caused a signal failure at Old Street.

First Capital Connect managing director Neal Lawson said: "This was a serious incident that could have ended very differently had it not been for the vigilance and prompt reporting and actions of our drivers."

"We carry two million people a year on the Northern City line and whoever is responsible for this must be held to account."

Network Rail said that specialist tunnelling contractors had been sent to the scene to assess the damage.

The Health and Safety Executive is investigating the incident.

Foster child abandoned on bus

A CHILD has been rehomed after being abandoned by a foster carer on a bus in Enfield.

Police were called to Bull Lane, Edmonton, just after 2pm on Friday March 1 after the child's foster carer alerted police that she had left the youngster in a pushchair on a 491 bus.

The child was given a check-up at North Middlesex Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, before being handed back to Haringey social services, which has since rehoused the toddler with a new foster family.

A Haringey Council spokesman confirmed that the authority was investigating and added: "The welfare and protection of all children in care is our number one priority."

"As soon as this incident came to light, steps were immediately taken to arrange a new fostering placement for the child."

Inquiries are continuing. There have been no arrests.

Survey highlights violence fears among hospital staff

By Koos Couvee

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

SIX per cent of staff at North Middlesex University Hospital say that they have experienced violence from a colleague at work, according to an NHS survey.

The figures, published by the Department of Health, highlighted a number of areas of concern for both the Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust and North Middlesex, in Sterling Way, Edmonton.

Health campaigners have said uncertainty over the future of health services is having a negative impact on staff morale at the borough's hospitals following the publication of an NHS staff survey.

While Chase Farm and Barnet were commended for their level of staff engagement, 30 per cent of staff said they had experienced bullying, harassment or abuse from colleagues in the past 12 months.

And the number of staff at Chase Farm and Barnet who would recommend the trust as a place to work or receive treatment was lower than the national average.

Four per cent said that they had experienced physical violence from colleagues over the past year and 17 per cent of staff felt they had experienced discrimination at work.

Kieran McGregor, of the Save Chase Farm campaign, told the Advertiser: "Staff at the hospitals have always shown the highest levels of professionalism, but it is not surprising that considering the constant reorganisation and job cuts, some staff may feel it is not a perfect working environment.

"They would be able to do their jobs in a more optimal fashion if the pressures on the sector would be less severe."

Rachel Patterson, director of people and organisational development at North Middlesex, said: "There is more that needs to be done in certain areas and we are developing an action plan to address this feedback.

"Progress against this plan will be shared and regularly reviewed."

A spokeswoman for the Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust said: "This period of change will clearly result in some concern and uncertainty for staff.

"We are putting in place equality targeted training sessions for staff to address bullying and harassment and discrimination issues across the trust."

'Reduce pressure': Kieran McGregor

MP de Bois calls for NHS chief to quit

ENFIELD North MP Nick de Bois has called on NHS chief executive Sir David Nicholson to resign for his role in the Mid-Staffordshire hospital scandal.

And recalling how his mother Paula died a painful death in a south London hospital in 2005, in a blog post published on the Conservative Home website, the Tory MP argued that patient care should be the top priority for the coalition government.

Mr de Bois wrote: "The crisis in the NHS following the release of the Francis Report into the event at the Mid-Staffordshire Trust has reawakened my memories of how caring has most certainly deteriorated.

"The professionalism of the surgeons treating my mother could not hide or prevent the failings on the ward where she spent her final days."

He went on to say that the failures exposed in the Francis Report came at a time of record NHS spending and that the new Health and Social Care Act provided an opportunity for a fresh debate on healthcare that goes "beyond a politicised bidding war between two political parties".

The MP added: "Change will only come about by both replacing Sir David Nicholson and with Number 10 seizing the moment to provide fresh leadership."

Patients facing longer journeys for cancer treatment

Consultation:
Plans have been put forward to stop specialist urological cancer surgery at Chase Farm Hospital

By Koos Couvee

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

PATIENTS with prostate or kidney cancer may have to be prepared to travel longer distances as health chiefs table plans to move specialist surgery out of Chase Farm Hospital.

Instead patients may be forced to travel to the Royal Free Hospital, in Hampstead, and University College Hospital, in Bloomsbury.

Clinicians at the NHS North East London and the City and NHS North Central London have launched a consultation process on proposals to stop specialist urological cancer surgery at Chase Farm, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, King George's Hospital, in Ilford, and Whipps Cross University Hospital, in Waltham Forest.

Health campaigners are concerned that many cancer patients living in Enfield, Barnet and other parts of London, as well as Hertfordshire and Essex, will have to travel lengthy distances for care.

Alev Cazimoglu, chairwoman of Enfield Council's health and well-being scrutiny panel, said: "Health care has been too London-centric for a long time and the option we are presented with means that two million people may face a black hole."

"Centralisation of services can be a good thing, but we need to be given another option. There is no reason why we can't have two centres, with one further up north."

A spokesman for Pro-Active, an Essex-based men's prostate cancer self-help group, said: "This is a major upheaval in local health services, not just a change to a small number of complex cases but to all primary surgical treatment for the most common form of male cancer."

"Such a major change requires a full statutory public consultation before any decision is made."

A spokeswoman for London Cancer, the board which advises NHS commissioners on cancer care, said that only around two people a day across north and east London and west Essex require this type of complex surgery, and that the majority of care, including less complex surgery, would continue to be carried out locally.

A spokeswoman for the Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust said: "Chase Farm Hospital continues to provide care for the majority of prostate cancer patients."

"Since October 2012, by clinical agreement, a temporary arrangement has been in place with University College London Hospitals for patients requiring specialist prostate cancer surgery."

"This will be reviewed following the outcome of the consultation by London Cancer."

A public consultation event on the changes is being held tomorrow at Mile End Hospital, in Bancroft Road, Mile End, east London, starting at 5pm.

COMMENT

We must protect our green spaces

IN these days of soaring air pollution and as urban sprawl marches ever onward onto every spare square of land the capital has to offer, we need our green spaces more than ever.

These places are a haven from the humdrum of everyday life.

So people trying to enjoy the borough's parks and open spaces should not have to deal with the pungent smell of raw sewage.

Would any of us be really happy with our children playing anywhere near a lake contaminated by raw sewage?

Do we really all have to suffer because of one company's determination to cut corners?

The sooner Thames Water fixes this the better off we will be in our desperately needed retreats from today's busy society.

Now time for the squatters to leave

IT'S a shame the area of Brimsdown has been blighted for so long by the squatters who have been living at a derelict MOT centre.

Residents and business owners have had to put up with a lot from the group, who are still there following a failed eviction attempt last week.

If the owners had been more prepared it might have saved a lot of hassle and council officers would not have wasted the whole day waiting for the eviction that never was.

How much taxpayers' money has been wasted on that one?

Not all squatters are the bad guys – those who saved Friern Barnet Library from closure should be commended for their community spirit.

But the Brimsdown squatters ought to realise they have had their fun and should move on.

North/south rail link should be just the start

I WAS impressed by the letter from Mr Cox, of Harlesden, about the expansion of London's railways (Advertiser, February 27).

The thought has often crossed my mind that after going out to Lewisham (south), would a (north) link-up not be of benefit?

Getting around the North Circular is a real pain as it becomes gridlocked at times during the day/weekend.

The DLR is mainly above ground and surely the way ahead is for it to go to Heathrow, as well as to Brent Cross on to Barnet then tunnel to Enfield (Gordon Hill), before extending out to Hertford, Stevenage and Stansted. This way offers an alternative route.

What about a DLR/2 linking all the airports around London with better travel facilities north and south of the capital?

The Crossrail project is excellent news to me, joining east/west London. Is it now time that north/south criss-crossed on the drawing board.

Call-in meeting was merely 'box-ticking'

THANKS to the governors of Grange Park Primary School and their colleagues for attending the council call-in meeting.

Friday night at 5pm is about as inconvenient a time as the council could have made it.

I think it is clear that cabinet member for education Ayfer Orhan has little grasp of the salient points, instead she seemed intent on making the whole thing into a political argument, which it most emphatically is not.

Members of the Conservative opposition are just as keen as everyone else to ensure all Enfield children have school places.

Secondly, there can be little doubt that the consultation was a mere 'box-ticking' exercise, carried out only because the council had a statutory obligation to do so.

Time and again, governments (local and national) seem to forget residents have to live with their decisions and that taxpayers have to foot the bill.

To ignore their legitimate and often highly insightful input is wrong.

On the matter of the governors' veto – a right granted by the council – I think it was made abundantly clear it will not be honoured if exercised. Instead, objections will have to be raised through the normal planning process, and doubtless will be ignored by the Labour-dominated planning committee.

Lastly, director of education Andrew Fraser admitted the decision was taken by the cabinet member and referred to the Department for Education on the same day – thereby pre-empting any constitutional right of call-in.

The fact is, the council found itself in a difficult position regarding school places in September 2013.

The solution it obviously chose was simply to ride roughshod over constitutional rules and hope it wasn't spotted in doing so. No such luck!

To everyone from Grange Park, I sincerely apologise if the attitude and actions of the cabinet member and council officers being laid bare came as a shock to you.

Councillor Martin Prescott
Winchmore Hill ward

Just keep plants under control

RE: "Intimidating trees face the axe" (Advertiser, February 27).

There is nothing intimidating about the trees – it's a failure to keep the bushes under control.

All it needs is underplanting with spring bulbs that will come back each year and the sort of bedding plants that are put in the raised beds in the precinct.

Rosemary Avenue, Enfield

Broomfield House not an eyesore to majority

YES, another apparent setback for Broomfield House (Letters, Advertiser, February 20).

However, seen against the long history of attempts at regeneration, it is not a fatal one.

Indeed, the latest broadly-based, community-inspired plan which has the unprecedented support of Enfield Council, is the most encouraging proposal to date.

It is not a sell-out/sell-off to corporate commercial interests.

Instead, the scheme would retain a community asset for local people and others, preserve and explain the history of Broomfield House, provide healthy refreshment for park users, offer spaces for creative activities and ultimately revitalise the stable block and yard and the water gardens around the house.

None of those aspects, so important for recreation and community building in an increasingly densely populated area, would be available under commercial schemes.

The Broomfield House Working Group, effectively the authors of the current plan, trusts the council's commitment will hold firm and that another bid for initial funding can soon be made.

Broomfield House and the park are too important to be ditched for a quick commercial fix.

Happily, those who can see only an eyesore are vastly outnumbered by those who recognise the distinctive value for the present and future generations.

Broomfield House Trust,

Fight against 'bedroom tax'

THE Federation of Enfield Community Organisations is petitioning Enfield Council to protect the borough's residents from the adverse effects of the Welfare Reform Act.

In particular, it is demanding that the council implements safeguards to protect vulnerable and long-standing residents from having to leave their home because of the "bedroom tax" legislation.

To maintain community cohesion and to protect the vulnerable, FECA is asking the council to act on these concerns to avoid possession proceedings against anyone who is affected by a loss of housing benefit.

For more information and to start or sign a petition, visit www.feca.co.uk, call 020 8245 3593 or write to 11 Nottingham Road, Edmonton, London, N9 8DX.

Trip is just a pointless jolly

THIS month, Enfield's apparently hard-up Labour council is sending a delegation to another conference in Cannes, in the south of France.

But when in power, Conservative cabinet members declined to attend these events on the basis they did not give any real value to the taxpayer.

Tory councillor Martin Prescott noted that he expecting a full report of what they have been up to when they return – and he was sure that Enfield's residents would like to know, too.

Meeting date

NEXT Tuesday, March 19, there is a meeting involving the scrutiny panel on older people and vulnerable adults (social services).

It will take place at the Civic Centre, in Silver Street, Enfield, starting at 7.30pm. All are welcome.

A cut above: James Whitaker and his team collected two prizes at the English Hair and Beauty Awards

James is top of the chops

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A HAIRDRESSER has beaten off competition from glitzy rivals nationwide to take home an awards double whammy.

James Whitaker, who owns and manages James Whitaker Hair Salon, in Lancaster Road, Enfield, scooped two top prizes at the English Hair and Beauty Awards in Manchester.

James and his two senior stylists Donna Mott and Lisa Edwards picked up the award for best London salon and best hair salon in the UK at the black tie gala at the Midland Hotel, fending off competition from stylist to the stars Jamie Stevens, who works on ITV talent show the X Factor.

"It means so much to win this as the nominations come directly from the customers rather than just industry types," James told the Advertiser.

And although coming top of the choppers means James will be in high demand with celebrities and the fashion conscious, the stylist is keen to stick to his roots – and he says that Enfield residents will still be the salon's priority.

"First and foremost for us it is always about the local community," he insisted, "because it is amazing being able to offer high-end hairdressing to people outside of Mayfair or the West End at a reasonable price."

With his profile rising steadily, James is excited about what the future holds for his salon.

And he admits that it will not be the worst scenario if a few famous faces visit his salon.

"There are a few boy band members I would like to get my hands on to sort out their hair," he added.

While bookings have been flooding in thick and fast since the awards were announced, James is adamant that with enough notice you can have one of the senior stylists from the winning team tussle with your tresses.

"At the minute we are very very busy, but if you book in advance, anyone can still get an appointment with one of our top stylists," he said.

In parliament: Giles Abban, Yousif Alawood, Chansey White and Jake Orros

Speaking up for young people

By Bethan Marsh

news.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

ENFIELD'S two youth parliament members said they wanted to give the borough's young people a voice as they attended a reception hosted by mayor Kate Anolue on Friday.

Giles Abban, 18, and Jake Orros, 17, were joined at the reception at Enfield Civic Centre by deputy members Yousif Alawood, 17, who goes to Enfield Grammar School, in Market Place, Enfield, and Chansey White, 17.

"I think young people have a bad reputation in London since situations like the London riots in 2011," said Giles, a student at St Ignatius College, in Turkey Street, Enfield. "I want to empower youths, to show them in a positive light and build a bridge with the older generation."

Giles uses social media such as Twitter to communicate with young people and is considering creating a website to enable teenagers to speak their mind by posting opinions.

"I ask young people what changes they would like to see, so I can represent them in my role as an Enfield Youth Parliament member," he added.

Jake, who is studying history, geography, politics and art at Winchmore School, in Laburnum Grove, Winchmore Hill, said: "As members of the national youth parliament, Giles and I are representing 30,000 young people from Enfield. I want to make a difference to the life of young people."

The UK Youth Parliament was created for young people to have a say and make their opinions known across Britain. It tackles issues including education, improving public transport and preparing for careers. The chosen national campaign for 2013 is Curriculum For Life.

Chansey, a pupil at Highlands School, in Worlds End Lane, Grange Park, added: "I'm finding the youth parliament really interesting. I enjoy meeting new people. I think it's a great stepping stone into politics. I find that I'm really interested in the financial side of it. It's good to know where the money is going and how it's being spent."

Young singers raise voices in Germany

By Heather Saul
news.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

A GROUP of young singers have returned from a seven-day tour of Bavaria, where they joined forces with a prestigious German choir.

The Children's International Voices of Enfield choir visited Erding, a town in south-east Germany, where they took part in an exchange with the Korbinian Aigner-Gymnasium school.

During their stay, the Southgate-based choir performed at a concert at the Gymnasium, sang at a baroque church in Erding and led a recital at Munich Cathedral.

June Keyte, co-founder of the choir, said the exchange was organised as the German school's headteacher Hans Joachim Fuhrig once lived in London.

She said: "The headmaster's son used to be in our choir when they were living in England, so he arranged for us to visit and stay with families in the area.

"It was such an amazing week. We took along 50 young people aged between eight and 22 and their parents, so we had some very young members there."

The choir is made up of five singing groups aged from four to 22. It was established 21 years ago by Mrs Keyte and her husband Christopher after the couple retired.

Mr Keyte has been a member of Covent Garden's Royal Opera House for 20 years and has broadcast regularly on BBC radio and television.

Mrs Keyte, former director of music at Kingsmead School, in Southbury Road, Enfield, said the couple set up the choir as they were keen to carry on contributing to the community.

"I've taught in Enfield for almost 55 years," she said.

"When I retired, it seemed like a good idea to form a choir ourselves and give our services for free.

"It started with eight or nine children aged between nine and ten. We have more than 100 young people here now."

Members of the Korbinian-Aigner-Gymnasium choir will visit Enfield for the Summer Festival on July 14.

The Children's International Voices of Enfield choir's next concert, Metaswitch Munich Memories, takes place at 3pm on Sunday March 24 at Palmers Green United Reformed Church, on the corner of Fox Lane and Burford Gardens.

A Safer Neighbourhood

Get involved with your CAPE!

Do you want to help shape your local policing priorities?
Do you have an hour to spare each month?
Get involved with your local CAPE!

What is a CAPE?

Each Ward in the London Borough of Enfield has a CAPE (Community Action Partnership for Enfield). A CAPE is a group made up of members of the community, the local MP, Ward Councillors, Council officers and business representatives. It can also include representatives from organisations such as schools, faith groups and housing associations.

What does it do?

After consulting with residents, the main job of the CAPE is to decide the key policing priorities for the Ward and to keep track of progress in tackling these. The CAPE works with the Police chiefly through its Safer Neighbourhoods Teams. Each Safer Neighbourhoods Team is led by a Police Sergeant and consists of (usually) two Police Constables and one or more Police Community Support Officers. The Chairs of each CAPE also meet together four times a year in a group called the Enfield Community Police Partnership (ECPP) where there is the opportunity to raise issues and concerns directly with the Borough Commander, Chief Superintendent Jane Johnson, and her senior officers.

Get involved!

Your involvement is, and will be, essential to ensure that the Police are aware of your community's policing priorities and concerns. This is where you come in! We want to improve local representation on CAPEs by increasing the number of residents who are members and ensuring that all of the diverse communities in Enfield are represented. This includes, for example, encouraging young people and members of minority communities to join.

So, if you have an interest in joining a CAPE or want to find out more, contact the ECPP secretary, Jane Juby, by email at jane.juby@enfield.gov.uk or by telephone on 020 8379 4073.

Death of ballroom dancing stalwart

By Mary McConnell

mary.mcconnell@nlhnews.co.uk

A POPULAR member of the Bush Hill Park community has died at the age of 82 following a short illness.

Alan Thorndyke, pictured, who was born in Edmonton, was a keen ballroom dancer and met his wife Iris after taking it up in the 1950s.

The couple married in 1956 and their daughter Joan was born three years later.

Mr Thorndyke, whose wife died in 1993, went on to have an active retirement.

He flew for the first time at the age of 68, taking a trip to Taiwan that he had won as part of a short wave radio competition.

Mr Thorndyke, of Gardenia Road, helped start Edmonton Cycling Club and regularly took part in the London to Cambridge and London to Southend rides.

He was a member of the Bush Hill Park Residents' Association and the Enfield Over 50s Forum.

Joan said: "After my mum died, he developed a very busy social life and made lots of friends. He was very well liked and travelled to lots of places.

"I also made him go back to ballroom dancing, which was how he met my mum. I knew he was very active but I didn't know how popular he was. It is nice to know people took him to heart."

Mr Thorndyke went to Latymer School, in Haselbury Road, Edmonton, and worked as an electrician for his father before getting a job with Ferguson.

His funeral service will take place at Bush Hill Park Methodist Church, in Wellington Road, at 2pm this Friday.

There will be refreshments at Bush Hill Park Bowls Club, in Abbey Road, from 4pm to 6pm.

The family has asked that donations, instead of flowers, be made to Cancer Research UK or Age UK.

Campaigner's funeral

THE funeral of activist Eric Trayhorn, of Holmesdale, Waltham Cross, will be held at Enfield Crematorium, in Great Cambridge Road, Enfield, this Friday at 2.15pm.

Mr Trayhorn, who campaigned on behalf of residents, died at the age of 88 on February 25.

OVER the next three weeks I have organised for a team of business people, including recruitment companies and employers, to hold seminars and workshops at secondary schools in my constituency.

It is part of something I have called the Next Steps Roadshow and is aimed at 15 to 18-year-olds.

Our goal is to help the students gain a competitive advantage over others when applying for jobs.

Advice includes how to write a winning CV, interview techniques on what employers are looking for, information on job searching and career options, including the growing appeal of apprenticeships.

I have been very fortunate to have the support of local business people and the schools in helping pull this idea together and make it happen.

At the time of writing we have held the first three workshops at Lea

Nick de Bois MP

A view from Westminster

Valley, St Ignatius and Chace. So far students seem to be both enjoying them and deriving real value.

The schools I have been to so far recognise that as they equip their students both with qualifications and self-belief, they may increase their chances of gaining recognition and an interview – but the skill sets required to successfully pursue their chosen career are very different.

Only about 40 per cent of jobs are advertised and knowing how to seek out those other opportunities and then present yourself in the best possible light are skills not always developed as part of a curriculum.

We try to deal with that at the roadshow and the students seem to relish the opportunity.

Since being elected in 2010, I have held two jobs fairs and now this roadshow. Taking action in the constituency to offer practical help is one of the most satisfying aspects of being an MP and little else beats the opportunity of helping people into work.

If you would like to follow progress of the Next Steps Roadshow or perhaps volunteer with a future programme, please follow me on Twitter @nickdebois or email me nick.debois.mp@parliament.uk

TODAY should have seen Healthwatch England's first national conference in Birmingham. It has been cancelled because only 60 people registered to attend.

Healthwatch is intended to be the powerful new watchdog charged with monitoring, influencing and improving all local health and social care services that Enfield residents use, want and need.

Enfield's Healthwatch should be opening its doors on April 1, ready to be consulted on any changes health professionals wish to make, to help with any patient's enquiries or complaints arising from the government changes to the NHS also coming into play that day.

This is the third attempt by

Monty Meth

Life president – Enfield Over-50s Forum

successive governments since 2003, when community health councils were abolished, to establish a voice for NHS users.

CHCs gave way to patient and public involvement forums and then to local involvement networks. The government has ignored the lessons of previous failures and told all local authorities to create a healthwatch without laying down any firm structure and timetable. The result will be a hotchpotch of shapes, sizes and effectiveness nationwide.

Here in Enfield, I'm told, we have had a paltry six applicants for the one-day-a-week chairman or chairwoman to be chosen by a councillors' panel in nine days' time, when what we need is a full-time, highly motivated chief executive backed by properly funded trained volunteers and staff.

Do our councillors understand that under the new Health and Social Care Act, Enfield Healthwatch is the only effective voice the people have to protect the NHS?

Visitors brave cold at open-air market

By Mary McConnell

SHOPPERS turned out in their droves at the first open-air market in Enfield Island Village. Stalls selling cakes, bread, artisan chocolates, fruit and vegetables and fine French cheeses were among the delights on offer at the market's launch last Saturday.

Organiser Ana Remigio was thrilled with the outcome.

"I think it went really well," she told the Advertiser. "It was the first one. We had a good selection of stalls, even though there were a few cancellations.

"It was a really cold day which will have affected how many people came. But the traders said they did well and if they're happy then I am happy.

"I hope people from the other side of the borough will come along - I don't think there should be a divide between west and east Enfield."

Ana is aiming to hold a market once a month and the next one is scheduled for April 13.

Book Day fun raises cash for kids' charity

By Mary McConnell

mary.mcconnell@nlhnews.co.uk

NURSERY children dressed up as their favourite storybook characters to raise money for charity.

Staff at the Angel Place Nursery, in Fore Street, Edmonton, organised a week of events as part of the Chatterbox Challenge in order to raise money for ICAN, a charity for children with speech and language difficulties.

Nursery manager Maria Nicolaou said that the youngsters combined Thursday's event with World Book

Day, which saw children and teachers nationwide dressing up as a range of characters.

Among the costumes chosen by children at Angel Place were The Gruffalo, Spiderman, The Hungry Caterpillar and Rapunzel.

On Friday, the children dressed in pyjamas for a teddy bears' picnic, and earlier in the week they enjoyed puppet shows, visits to a library and interactive storytelling.

Maria added: "The children have loved doing all of this – and the parents have enjoyed it, too, and have been very involved."

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTS

Betty celebrates after 105 years of living a good life

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE family of one of Enfield's oldest citizens credits her good health and longevity to a lifetime of clean living.

Lily Mary Winter, known to her friends and family as Betty, celebrated her 105th birthday last Wednesday at the Springview care home, in Crescent Road, Grange Park.

She grew up in Waverley Road, a few streets away from where she now lives and has spent her life in Enfield, apart from a spell at a finishing school in Switzerland which her nephew, Paul Brewster, 55, credits with instilling in her a lifelong love of the Swiss Alps.

"She travelled to the Alps on many occasions where she indulged her love of landscape photography," he told the Advertiser.

Betty never had a family of her own and devoted her adult life to working with young children.

She was a nursery school teacher in Enfield during World War II.

The committed Christian was also an active member of Christ Church United Reformed Church, in Chase Side, Enfield, where she taught at the Sunday school.

According to Paul, she has spent her life surrounded by close friends and family – and her younger sister Nancy, 96, still lives nearby.

But tragically Betty lost her twin brother when he died in a car accident 15 years ago. Her younger sister Phyllis also passed away at about the same time.

Explaining his aunt's longevity, Paul said: "It really is down to her love of all that is natural, innocent and clean living. I think she has stayed healthy for so long because she has a very positive attitude.

"You never, ever hear her complain and she has such a positive outlook on life."

YolanDa hopes sax appeal will get audience dancing

By Mary McConnell

mary.mcconnell@nlhnews.co.uk

SAXOPHONIST and singer YolanDa Brown says she is really excited to be performing at her "local", the Millfield Arts Centre, tomorrow.

YolanDa, who grew up in Tottenham, will be playing songs from her current album April Showers, May Flowers, at the venue in Silver Street, Edmonton.

It will be the second time she has performed at the Millfield, - after staging a successful show there last year.

And the 30-year-old is hoping the audience will be getting up to join her in a boogie.

"I incorporate a range of genres in the music I play, from reggae to classical," she said.

"If you have never been to a jazz concert before, then this would be a great way to introduce yourself to it.

"I wasn't formally trained - I play by ear, it's about feeling something.

"Even though it's a concert, it is something where I will be asking people to get up and dance.

"It's interactive and I love it when people get involved. I'll be dancing, so I hope people in the audience will be, too."

YolanDa, who has won two Music Of Black Origin (MOBO) awards, said she had saxophone lessons for six months when she was 13 but grew tired of them and decided to teach herself.

"I really felt that the lessons were just the theory of the instrument and there wasn't as much focus on playing and feeling," she said.

"I just used to love playing for myself. I played in my room and it wasn't until a next-door neighbour started clapping what I was doing that I realised music is for sharing."

YolanDa was studying for a PhD in management science before her music career took off.

She then decided to put her studies on hold when she began getting more and more recognition for her music.

"It got to the point where I had to choose between music and my PhD," she said. "I was touring and travelling. It all became too much.

Homecoming: YolanDa Brown

"In the end I chose music but it was a really hard decision to make."

For the first time YolanDa will be singing on a few of her tracks.

She explained: "It was very scary doing it at first but it is nice to break out from what I normally do. I love music without words but words make it a bit easier.

"Sadly, I can't sing and play the saxophone at the same time."

Doors for tomorrow night's show are at 7pm and tickets cost £20/£19 for adults and £17/£16 concessions. To book, call the box office on 020 8807 6680.

The Westender

with Mary McConnell

THE Living Room last hit the boards in the 1950s, so it's high time that this Graham Greene play was given a revival.

And the tiny Jermyn Street Theatre, in the West End, is the perfect venue for this claustrophobic, serious play.

As usual for a work by Greene, this fine tale of Catholic woe deals with big themes like death and the hypocrisies of religion.

The vibrant Tuppence Middleton plays Rose, a young girl who has embarked on an affair with a married man in his 40s.

Rose has lost her mother and goes to live with her great-aunts and great-uncle in their fusty old house.

Scared of death, the aunts have closed off all the rooms of the house in which relatives have died and less and less of the house is open to them - their living room is a tiny bedroom at the top of the house.

The three actors playing Rose's older relatives - particularly Caroline Blakiston and Diane Fletcher as the two aunts - are wonderfully cast. Their constant bickering, obsession with religious observance and social niceties contrast nicely with the free-spirited Rose.

One reservation was Rose's relationship Christopher Villiers' mundane Michael. Even given the inference that she is looking for a father figure, I didn't believe she would have fallen head over heels in love with him - and there were one or two moments that can only be described as icky.

LLORIS: WE'LL BOUNCE BACK

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

GOALKEEPER Hugo Lloris has urged his Tottenham Hotspur teammates not to let Sunday's defeat at Liverpool derail their quest for Champions League qualification.

Spurs' 12-match unbeaten run in the Premier League came to an end at Anfield as costly defensive errors saw the visitors let slip a 2-1 lead as they lost 3-2.

And, although they remain in third place in the table, Chelsea are just two points behind with a game in hand, while Arsenal – who have a much easier run-in – are seven points adrift having also played a game less.

Despite this, France international Lloris, who was partially at fault for Liverpool's second goal, is remaining upbeat about their prospects.

"This game must not break our confidence," he said. "We did great things before this game, and it's just one game in the season."

"Anything can happen so we have to look forward. We have to prepare for the next game with great concentration and get three points."

"We are disappointed because we lost, but there are a lot of positive things. We have to keep clear minds about the situation – we are still third."

"It would be better if we were ten points clear of Arsenal, but a lot of things can happen. We still have a lot of good games coming up."

"We can all learn from our mistakes, and the most important thing is not to make the same errors again. We have to look forward and stay focused."

Meanwhile, Tottenham will be hoping to book their place in the quarter-finals of the Europa League tomorrow night when they make the trip to Inter Milan, holding a commanding 3-0 lead from the first leg. Goals from Gareth Bale, Gylfi Sigurdsson and Jan Vertonghen – who also scored twice against Liverpool – capped a sparkling display from Spurs on Thursday night as they crushed the Italian giants.

Rallying call: Hugo Lloris insists that Sunday's defeat will not dent Spurs' hopes of a top-four finish

However, in-form Bale will be suspended for tomorrow's match after picking up a booking for diving, and head coach Andre Villas-Boas insists that he is not taking progress for granted.

"It was a full 90 minute performance on Thursday with excellent attacking football," he said. "We tried to limit their chances and had so many opportunities. It was a great European night."

"The players pressed hard and caused Inter lots of problems. We had some good chances and could have made it 2-0 even earlier."

"Unfortunately, we're not through yet because we have to go there and the San Siro is a very difficult place to go to. With all their experience everything can still change. We have to make sure we are competent and book our place in the last eight."

Skolars cruise to a comfortable victory

A COMFORTABLE 26-4 victory at home to Hemel Stags on Sunday enabled the London Skolars to retain their place at the top of their group in rugby league's Northern Rail Cup.

Playing at home for the first time this season, the Skolars almost took the lead after just two minutes when Smokie Junior was just unable to ground the ball over the line.

However, they did not have long to wait before breaking the deadlock as Junior did manage to touch down in the corner after seven minutes, with Dylan Skee adding the difficult conversion.

Using the wind to their advantage, Hemel kept the Skolars pinned in their own half for much of the opening 40 minutes, but the hosts did double their lead prior to the interval as Danny Burke scored a try which was again converted by Skee.

And any doubt about the result was ended when the hosts scored three tries in a ten-minute spell early in the second half.

John Paxton was the first man to touch down after long passes from Skee and Oscar Thomas found him in space, before the best of the tries saw James Anthony picking the ball up deep in his own half and evading several defenders as he raced 80 metres to the line.

Jack Dillon then got on the scoresheet as he broke clear down left, with Skee adding a third conversion to take him past 350 points for the club.

Shane Grady grabbed a late try for the Stags, but it made no difference to the outcome as the London Skolars, who go to Gloucestershire All Golds on Sunday, maintained their 100 per cent record.

Late goal rush seals a comprehensive triumph for Borough

A FOUR-GOAL burst in the final 20 minutes helped Haringey Borough to record a resounding 4-0 victory at Amptill Town in the Spartan Premier Division on Saturday.

Although there had been numerous chances at both ends throughout the match, some wayward finishing ensured that the deadlock was not broken until Dean Fenton finally slotted home in the 70th minute.

The visitors were completely dominant after this, and Oleg Semjonovs doubled their advantage before an own goal and a strike from Anthony McDonald rounded off the scoring to seal their second win in less than 48 hours – after Thursday night had seen Borough win 3-2 at home to St Margaretsbury to record their first midweek victory of 2013 at the sixth attempt.

Borough were dominant from the start and eventually took the lead on 35 minutes when visiting keeper Matt Deamer fumbled Semjonovs' cross to leave Demetri Stratis with a simple tap-in.

Cedric Lakole doubled the advantage from the spot five minutes later, and the hosts then found themselves in complete control as Dewayne Clarke added a third with a stunning 30-yard shot just before half-time.

However, St Margaretsbury responded well in the second period and pulled a goal back within four minutes of the restart courtesy of an Adam Lawton free-kick.

The hosts were reduced to ten men on the hour as Stratis saw red but, although Matt Hodges reduced the deficit with eight minutes remaining, Borough held firm to seal victory.

Haringey Borough are at home to Berkhamsted tomorrow (7.45pm) and Harefield United on Saturday (3pm).
